Important Paragraphs for Translation

1. While she was stacking dishes, she turned abruptly, dried her hands, and took the package from the bottom cabinet-opening it, she set the button unit on the table. She stared at it for a long time before taking the key from its envelope and removing the glass domed. She stared at the button. How ridiculous, she thought all this furor over a meaningless button.
2. Abruptly, she began to smash it on the sink edge, pounding it harder and harder, until the wood split. She pulled the sider apart, cutting her fingers without noticing. There were no transistors in the box, no wires or tubes. The box was empty.
3. When he'd gone to work. Norma remained at the table, staring into her coffee. I'm going to be late, she thought. She shrugged, what difference did? While she was stacking dishes, she turned abruptly, dried her hands, and took the package from the - bottom cabinet-opening it, she set the button unit on the table. She stared at it for a long time before taking the key from its envelope and removing the glass domed. She stared at the button. How ridiculous, she thought all this furor over a meaningless button.

4. I didn't want to go with him. I had just finished walking a half mile uphill from my home to his. I had carried a basket of dishes to Mom. There were two slips in the road and I couldn't drive my car. And I knew how hot it was. It was 97 in the shade. I knew that from January until April my father had gone to eight different doctors. One of the doctors had told him not to walk the length of a city block. He told my father to get a taxi to take him home.
 5. "Oh, yes" he said. "Early last spring, I couldn't climb straight up the steep path. That was when the doctor didn't give me a week to live. I made a longer easier path so I wouldn't have to do so much climbing. Then, as I got better," he explained, "I made another path that was little steeper. And as I continued to get better, I made steeper paths. That was one way of knowing I was getting better all the times!"
 6. "When I bought this little farm everybody around here said I'd end up with my family at the country poor farm if I tried to make a living here," he bragged again. "It took me thirty years to improve these old worn-out acres to make them do this!". "I like these woods Jess, "my father said, "Remember when we used to come here to hunt for squirrels? Remember when we sat beneath these hickories and the squirrels threw green hickory shells down at us?"
 7. Summer burned the canals dry. Summer moved like flame upon the meadows. In the empty earth settlement, the painted houses flake and peeled. Tuber tires upon which children had swung in back yards hung suspended like stopped clock pendulums in the blazing air.
 8. The wind blew as if to flake away their identities. At any moment the Martian air might draw his soul from him, as marrow comes from a white bone. He felt submerged in a chemical that could dissolve his intellect and burn away his past. They looked at the Martian hills that time had worn with a crushing pressure of years. They saw the old cities, lost in their meadows, lying like children's delicate bones among the blowing lakes of grass.
 9. The rocket metal cooled the meadow winds. Its lid gave a bulging pop. From its clock interior stepped a man, a woman, and three children. The other passengers whirled away across the Marian meadow. Leaving the man alone among his family. The man felt his hair flutter and the tissues of his body draw tight as if he were standing at the center of a vacuum. His wife, before him, seemed almost to whirled away in smoke. The children, small seeds, might at any instant be sown to all the Martian climes. The children looked up at him, as people look to the sun to tell what time of their life it is. His face was cold.

10. She was a large woman with a large purse that had everything in it but a hammer and nails. It had a long strap, and she carried it slung across her shoulder. It was about eleven o'clock at night, dark, and she was walking alone, when a boy ran up behind her and tried to snatch her purse. The strap broke with a sudden single tug the boy gave it from behind. But the boy's weight and the weight of the purse combined caused him to lose his balance.
11. Sweat popped out on the boy's face and he began to struggle. Mrs. Jones stopped, jerked him around in front of her, put a half nelson about his neck, and continued to drag him up the street. When she got to her door. She dragged the boy inside, down a hall, and into a large kitchenette – furnished room at the rear of the house. She switched on the light and left the door open. The boy could hear other roomers laughing and talking in the large house. Some of their doors were open, too, so he knew he and the women were not alone.
12. The diners discussed the crops and the weather which was favorable for the green things but not for wheat. Suddenly, at the sound of drum beat in the court everybody rose from the seats except a few ones who still had the food in their hands. After the drumbeat had ceased, the drumbeater called out to the people who were now attentive and impatiently waiting for him to call out the public announcement.
13. After the meal had concluded the Chief of the police appeared on the scene. He inquired, "Is Mr. Hubert here?" Mr. Hubert seated at another end of the table replied, "Here I am." The accompany me to the Mayor's office, the Mayor would like to talk to you. "Mr. Hubert surprised and disturbed, followed the Police officer. The Mayor, a stout serious man, was waiting for Hubert.
14. There was no use of Mr. Hubert's protesting, for nobody believed him. Mr. Manana repeatedly maintained that Hubert has picked up the pocket book. For an hour both men abused each other. Then at his own request, Mr. Hubert was searched. Nothing was found on him. Finally, the Mayor discharged Hubert with warning that he would consult the public prosecutor and ask for further orders.
15. People stated to tell the story of the string to amuse them and told it in a manner of soldier who had been on a campaign and told about his battles. Hubert's mind touched to the depth began to weaken day by day towards the end of the month he took to his bed. He died in the first week of the following month. In the delirium of his struggle he kept claiming his innocence.

16. There was young fellow, 'said Jorkens,' to whom his parents probably used to say the very things that we have been saying now; and very likely he, as many young fellows do. May have wanted to prove them wrong. I don't know: it was a long time ago. But, whatever his motive was, he hit on a most extraordinary ambition, and stuck to it. It was nothing less than to be appointed Court acrobat.
17. One he raised to touch the lowest of the swings that no was hung from the ceiling. But again, the applause broke out, assuring him that no actual activity was expected of him. And so; having made his bows, he was led to a seat, his life's ambition achieved. It must have taken him more than sixty years to do it, since first he came by that strange ambition of his. But he did it. Not many stick to a thing for so long.
18. The I grasped the child's head with my left hand tried to get the wooden tongue depressor between her teeth. She fought with clenched teeth, desperately! But now I also had grown furious at a child. I tried to hold myself down but I couldn't. I know how to expose a throat for inspection. And I did my best. When finally, I got the wooden spatula behind the last teeth and just the point of it into the mouth cavity, she opened up for an instant.
19. The child was fairly eating me up with her cold, steady eyes, and no expression to her face whatever, she did not move and seemed, inwardly, quiet, and unusually attractive little thing, and as strong as a heifer in appearance. But her face was flushed, she was breathing rapidly, and I realized that she had a high fever. She had magnificent blonde hair, in profusion. One of those picture children often reproduced in advertising leaflets and the photogravure sections of the Sunday papers.
20. In the final unreasoning assault, I overpowered the child's neck and jaws. I forced the heavy silver spoon back of her teeth tonsils covered with membrane. She had fought valiantly to keep me from knowing her secret. She had been hiding that sore throat for three days at least and lying to her parents in order to escape just such an outcome as this.
21. "The foundation of oppression was small in the world", said the king. "whoever enlarged it, so that it reached its present magnitude, is at fault. If the king eats one apple from the garden of a subject, his slaves will pull down the whole tree. For five eggs, which the king allows to be taken by force, the people belonging to his army will put a thousand fowls on the spit. A tyrant does not remain in the world, but the curse on him abides forever!
22. A son of a farmer was discovered to possess the qualities mentioned by doctors. The king summoned the father and mother of the boy, whose consent he got by giving them a huge amount of wealth. The Qazi issued a decree to shed the blood of a person for the health of the king. The boy was brought to the altar and the executioner was directed to slaughter the boy. When all was ready the boy looked toward the sky and smiled.

23. If they fail, they are expected to bring the case before the Qazi to seek justice. But in the present case, the parents have agreed to get my blood shed for the trash of this world. The Qazi has issued a decree to kill me. The king thinks he will recover his health only through my slaying and I see no other refuge besides God almighty. To whom shall I complain against your brutality, if I am to seek justice from your hand?
24. But in the present case, the parents have agreed to get my blood shed for the trash of this world. The Qazi has issued a decree to kill me. The king thinks he will recover his health only through my slaying and I see no other refuge besides God almighty. To whom shall I complain against your brutality. If I am to seek justice from your hand?
25. A king fell seriously ill and all hopes of his recovery vanished. The more the disease was cured the more it became painful. At last the physicians agreed that this disease cannot be cured except by means of bile of a person endowed with certain qualities. Orders were issued to search for an individual of this kind. A son of a farmer was discovered to possess the qualities mentioned by doctors. The king summoned the father and mother of the boy, whose consent he got by giving them a huge amount of wealth. The Qazi issued a decree to shed the blood of a person for the health of the king. The boy was brought to the altar and the executioner was directed to slaughter the boy. When all was ready the boy looked toward the sky and smiled.
26. An old woman, whose throat was swollen to a frightful size, exclaimed: "o my son, if you would only cure my goiter, I would bless you for evermore!" "Certainly," answered the man; "here, bring me a blanket and a good-sized mallet."
27. As soon as they were brought, he tied up the woman's throat, and struck the swollen part with so much force that the poor old creature instantly expired.
28. When he had overtaken them, her cried: "what foolish men you must be! I met an old woman who suffered from goiter just like your camel; and I tied a blanket round her neck and struck her with a mallet, but, instead of recovering like your camel, she died and instead of getting a fee I was compelled to dig her grave!"
29. "It is not we who are stupid," answered the camel-men, "but you. We are not stupid at all. These animals are camels of prodigious size and strength. How was a feeble old woman to stand the blow of a mallet?"

30. At once Richard shouted at the cook-boy. Old Stephen yelled at the house-boy. The cook-boy ran to beat the old ploughshare hanging from a tree branch, which was used to summon store to collect tin cans, any old bit of metal. The farm was ringing with the clamor of the gong; and they could see the laborers comes pouring out of the compound, pointing at the hills and shouting excitedly.
31. Margaret was wondering what she could do to help. She did not know. Then up came old Stephen from the lands. "We're finished, Margaret, finished! Those beggars can eat every leaf and blade off the farm in half an hour! And it is only early afternoon if we can make enough smoke, make enough noise till the sun goes down.
32. "For the Lord's sake," said Margaret angrily, still half-crying, "what's here is bad enough, isn't it?" For although the evening air was no longer black and thick, but a clear blue, with a pattern of insects whizzing this way and what across it, everything else – trees, buildings, bushes, earth – was gone under the moving brown masses.
33. I am not unmindful that some of you have come here out of great trial and tribulations. Some of you have come fresh from narrow jail cells. Some of you have come from the areas where your quest for freedom left you battered by the storms of persecution and staggered by the winds of police brutality. You have been the veterans of creative suffering. Continue to work with the faith that unearned suffering is redemptive.
34. With this faith we will be hew out of the mountain of despair, a stone of hope. With this faith we will be able to transform the jangling discords of our nation into a beautiful symphony of brotherhood. With this faith we will be able to work together, to pray together, to struggle together, to go to jail together, to stand up for freedom together, knowing that we will be free one day.
35. I have a dream that one day every valley shall be exalted, every hill and mountain shall be made low, the rough placed will be made plains, and the crooked places will be made straight, and the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together. This is our hope. This is the faith with which I return to the South. With this faith we will be able to hew out of the mountain of despite, a stone of hope. With this faith we will be able to transform the jangling discords of our nation into a beautiful symphony of brotherhood.
36. This is our hope. This the faith with which I return to the South. With this faith we will be able to hew out of the mountain of despair a stone of hope. With this faith we will be hew out of the mountain of despair, a stone of hope. With this faith we will be able to transform the jangling discords of our nation into a beautiful symphony of brotherhood. With this faith we will be able to work together, to pray together, to struggle together, to go to jail together, to stand up for freedom together, knowing that we will be free one day.

37. The door opened and Jim stepped in. He looked very thin and her was not smiling. Poor fellow, he was only twenty-two and with a family to take care of! He needed a new coat and he had nothing to cover his cold hands.
38. Jim stopped inside the door. He was as quiet as a hunting dog when it is neat a bird. His eyes looked strangely at Della, and understand. It filled her with fear. It was not anger, nor surprise, nor anything she had been ready for. He simply looked at her with the strange expression on his face.
39. The Magi, as you know, were wise men – wonderfully wise men – who brought gifts to the newborn Christ-child. They were the first to give Christmas gifts. Being wise, their gifts were doubtlessly wise ones. And here I have told you the story of two children who were not wise. Each sold the most valuable thing he owned in order to buy a gift.
40. Before his marriage, Maulvi Abul Barkat, alias Abul used to live in comfort, even pomp. On his head, he wore a light brown turban known as Mashadi lungi, because it originally came from Mashad in Iran. The glided tip of his cap used to shine brightly above the turban. He always carried a walking stick, a sort of scepter with decorative bands of brass and gilt. For his hair, he used fragrant oil. Its sweet pungent smell lingered in the village lanes whenever he walked through them.
41. After the ceremonies were over, Mehrun was made to sit in a palanquin: Beautifully decorated, it was covered with a large silken cloth so that the bride could go to the bridegroom's house in strick purdah. As two sturdy villagers carried it away, Maulvi Abul walked a few steps with it. He must have cried silently for his eyes and nose were red and he looked pale. At the same time he looked at peace.
42. He was the only son of a Haafiz. After the death of his father, Khudayar, tried to follow his father's footsteps. When he was about 16, he went away to the city, leaving his old mother behind. Later they learnt that he had worked in the house of a head clerk, after which he had managed to open a small shop on a footpath where he began selling cut pieces. After saving some money and gaining experience in the business, he returned to the village.
43. When the couple had walked some hundred yards ahead of him, he hurriedly started after them. Hardly had he reached half way across the road when a truck full of bricks came from behind like a gust of wind and crushing him down speeded off towards McLeod Road. The driver of the truck had heard a shriek and had actually for a moment slowed down, but realizing that something serious had happened, had taken advantage of the darkness and had sped away into the night.

44. The young man seated on the cement bench was watching with interest the people passing on the pavement before him. Most of them were wearing overcoats which were of every kind from the astrakhan to the rough military khaki such as are found in large bundles at the secondhand clothes shops.
45. The shoes and the socks now came off. The shoes were old but brightly polished. As to the socks, in color and pattern the one was quite different from the other. There were holes at the heels and where the flesh showed through the holes it was grimed with dirt. He was by now dead and his life-less body lay on the white marble slab.
46. I also reminded him of the four balcony seats I had taken for the monster show at his majesty's in aid of the fund for the Destitute British in Johannesburg. Not all the celebrated actors and actresses announced on the posters had appeared, but all had sent letters full of kindly wishes and the others – all the celebrities one had never heard of – had turned up to a man.

یہاں تین سے چار لائنیں تشریح کے حوالے سے لکھ دیں

It is an excellent poem. It is full of meanings. The language is simple and charming. This poem is excellent blend of human emotions and feelings. The main idea of the poem is _____.

References to Contexts

1. The Rain (W.H.Davies)

This poem describes the beauty of rainfall. The rain brings freshness and joy to nature. It makes us happy together with the trees. It gives us hopes of a bright sunshine and a glorious future.

2. Night Mail (W.H.Auden)

The theme is the beautiful movement of the night mail and the service it does to all kinds of people. It brings different types of mails. It delivers letter to everyone whether rich or poor. It travels through different lands. It is very punctual. It creates great noise but does not disturb the life of animals and human beings.

3. Loveliest of Trees, the Cherry Now (A.E.Housman)

This poem reflects poet's deep love and concern for the cherry tree. The cherry is covered with snow, and its branches are loaded with flowers. The poet appreciates the beauty of cherry tree and wants to spend time with its pleasant company.

4. O Where are You Going? (W.H.Auden)

It is a story of courage. We should struggle for success. We should not be afraid of failure or death. The brave and courageous people are not afraid of anything. The rider in the poem rejects the reader's philosophy of failure.

5. In The Street of the Fruit Stalls (Jan Stallworthy)

The poet tells us that the world is full of troubles. It is threatened with war, misery and poverty. But all these have failed to crush man's love for pleasure. Poor people and their children enjoy life in their own ways. Children enjoy the sweet taste of fruit being unaware of the dark picture of the world.

6. A Sindhi Woman (Jan Stallworthy)

The poem shows the dignity of labour. It tells us that those who work hard physically keep healthy and smart like the Sindhi Woman and they work well. The Sindhi Woman walks erectly. The pet's body is bending forward because he is mostly inactive. Those who are hardworking are respected everywhere.

9. The Feed (Ahmed Nadeem Qasmi)

This poem is symbolic. The grain stands for resources. The young ones of the sparrow stand for the hungry. It teaches us that we should not produce weapons. We should produce food instead of weapons.

10. TheHollowMen (T.S.Eliot)

The poet laments the idleness of modern man. He says that modern man lacks spirit and zeal. They have become materialistic. They have become dull immoral and soulless. They are without proper plans and their movements and actions are without meaning. Eliot wants to say that it is better to do evil than to do nothing.

11. Leisure (William Henry Davies)

The poet says that the modern man is leading a busy life. His greatest curse is that he has no time to enjoy natural scenes or human beauty or art. Man cannot enjoy these because he spends most of his time on worldly problems.

12. Ruba'iyat (Allama Muhammad Iqbal)

The poet says that the Muslims must have firm faith in Allah. They should be united. But they have lost their sincerity. Their love for Allah is skin-deep.

14. My Neighbour Friend Breathing His Last! (Bullah Shah) (A.R. Luther)

The death of the poet's spiritual guide saddens him and he did not want to live. God's love and mercy gave him hope and desire to live.

Before the story write this paragraph.

The most hated word in this world is morality. The person who teaches morality is also hated and despised. It may be a pessimistic point of present situation. We do not like to learn good morals and manners when they are taught in dull and dry manners. Perhaps it was because of this, that centuries ago Mr. Aesop concocted some moral stories. These stories have been written in a very lively and interesting style. We read these stories and learn some moral lesson from them. But we do not have any impression of being moralized. The following story is also a similar one.

At the end of the story write this paragraph

Morals are like universal truths. Every person irrespective of his caste, creed, odour or country has a firm belief in them. Those who try to follow them in their lives avert many perils and problems. The above mentioned story also teaches us such a moral lesson that can help us avoid many unpleasant and bitter situations.

An Angel and the woodcutter

Once, a poor woodcutter was cutting wood near the bank of a river. By chance, his axe fell into the river. He began to weep over his loss. Suddenly an angel appeared there and asked what the matter was. The wood cutter said, "My axe fell into the river. I do not know how I will earn my bread without an axe." The angel took pity on the poor man. He jumped into the river and dived into deep water. After a while he brought out a golden axe. The woodcutter refused to take/accept it. The angel dived again, and brought out a silver axe. The woodcutter was not ready to accept it also. The angel dived for the third time and brought out an iron axe. Seeing the axe the woodcutter cried with joy and said, "This is my axe." The angel was very pleased with the woodcutter at his honesty. He gave him the other two axes also as a reward for his honesty.

Moral:

- ❖ Honesty is the best policy.
- ❖ Honesty never goes unrewarded.
- ❖ Truth in always Triumphant.

The Foolish / Vain Stag

Once, a stag was drinking water at a pool. The water was very clear. The stag saw his reflection in the water. He was pleased to see his beautiful horns and admired them. He also saw his lean and thin legs and badly hated them. All of a sudden, the stag heard the hunter's horse and howls of hounds. A pack of hounds was coming towards him. The stag was filled with fear. He ran as fast as he could to save his life. His thin and ugly legs helped him and they carried him away from the hunter and the hounds. While he was running, he passed through bushes. Unfortunately his long horns were caught up in a bush. He tried to get free but all in vain. Soon, he was overtaken by the hounds. His beautiful horns of which he was so proud brought about his death. The hounds fell upon him and tore him into pieces.

Moral:

- ❖ All that glitters is not gold.
- ❖ Appearances are often deceptive.
- ❖ Pride hath a fall.

A Thirsty Crow

Once a crow was very thirsty .He flew here and there in search of water but he could not find any water. At last he reached a garden. There he saw pitcher of water. The crow flew up to it and found that it was half full of water. He tried to drink water but could not succeed because the water was bit low for him. He was disappointed because he did not know how to quench his thirst. However, the crow did not lose heart, and thought of a plan. He flew to the nearest mound and returned with a small pebble in his beak. He dropped it into the pitcher and flew away to bring another. In this way, he dropped many pebbles into the pitcher. Slowly the water rose up. After a while it rose to the mouth of the pitcher. The crow quenched his thirst and flew away happily.

Moral:

- ❖ Where there is a will, there is a way.
- ❖ God helps those who help themselves.
- ❖ Try, try again.
- ❖ He who seeks finds.
- ❖ Necessity is the mother of invention.

The King and The Spider

Robert Bruce was the king of Scotland. He was very brave. He fought many battles but every time he was defeated. Once he had to run for his life. His enemies followed him. He hid himself in a cave. He decided not to struggle any more. Suddenly, he saw a spider. It had fallen from its cobweb. It tried to reach its web, but slipped and fell down. The spider did not lose heart, and tried again, but fell down. The spider tried to climb up nine times, but every time it failed. The king thought that the spider would try no more. But he was surprised to see that the spider was ready to attempt for the tenth time. This time it succeeded. It gave the king a new hope. He said to himself, "If a small spider can succeed by trying again and again, why should I not? He came out and gathered his forces. He attacked the English and this time he was able to defeat them. Thus he gained freedom for himself and his country.

Moral:

- ❖ Try, try again.
- ❖ No pains, no gains.
- ❖ God helps those who help themselves.

The Fox and The Goat

Once, a fox fell into a well. He did not know how to come out. When he was thinking of some means to get out, a goat passed that way. By chance the goat peeped into the well. He said to the fox, "Hello uncle what are you doing here? The fox replied, "Dear nephew, the water of this well is very cool. I am sure, you will enjoy it every much. So come down and have a drink." The goat was very foolish. He did not stop to think and jumped into the well at once. The fox at once got over the back of the goat and jumped out of the well. Now the goat realized his folly. He requested the fox to help him out. "The fox said" you should not have jumped into the well without thinking. Now enjoy the sweet water of the well. Goodbye! Saying this, the fox ran away into the jungle and the goat was left in trouble.

Moral:

- ❖ Look before you leap.
- ❖ Haste makes waste.
- ❖ A Stitch in Time saves nine.

Application

Write an application to the Principal of your college for remission of library fine.
The Principal,
Government College,
A.B.C.

Subject: Remission of library fineRespected Sir,

With due respect, it is stated that I was fined Rs. 500 for not returning the library books on the due date (مقررہ تاریخ). In fact, my father was seriously (شدید) ill. He was admitted to hospital. I had to look after him therefore I could not come to college. I was so tense (پریشان) that I could not even know that the due date for returning the books has elapsed (گزر گئی ہے). My father is still ill. We have spent a lot of money on his treatment. Our economic conditions (معاشی حالات) have worsened (بدتر ہونا). Therefore, I cannot pay the library fine.

Please, remit (معاف کر دیں) my library fine and give me a chance to thank you.
