  - (iv) What do law-abiding scholars say about law?
  - (v) How were the Saracens faster than fate?
4. Read the following passage and answer the questions given at the end: 04
- The absorption of an undue quantity of any plain food, I consider to be a vast mistake. Five muffins are enough for any man at any one meal, and the breast and wing of a chicken should suffice without attacking the fibrous legs. Very different, however, is the case of 'pate de fole gras', sandwiches, oysters and meringues. I cannot eat too many of these. I make it, therefore, my rule to consume very limited quantities of plain food in order to leave as much room as possible for delicacies. I seldom drink anything but tea, coffee or cocoa during a meal. If I drink anything at all between meals, it is a glass of plain mineral water.
- (i) What kind of food items the writer does not like to eat?
  - (ii) What does the word "delicacies" mean?
